A Strange Case.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 1.-The singular spectacle of a man of family leaving his wife and daugh. ters to enter the priesthood of the Catholic Church is presented in the case of Dr. C. M. Sorg, of Newport. The tale is best told in a review of the salient points of his life, as well related as an interview with one of his family, who was not certain as to her father's early history, will allow. He was educated in Germany, his native country, for the priesthood, and entered the ministry against his own inclination. He was pastor of a church in his own country, and afterward came to America.

In this country he had charge successfully of several different churches in New York and Pennsylvania. His taste for the priesthood not increasing, he resigned his charge and re-turned to his native country, where he studied medicine. Gradnating, he returned to the land of his adoption to enter upon the practice of his new profession. His practice proving sufficiently lucrative, he married and shortly afterward removed to Newport, where he has lived for nearly twenty years. He acquired a good practice and a comfortable fortune, and raised a family of children of whom two descriptors. a family of children, of whom two daughters

Dr. Sorg has had trouble in the last few years, and some of his experiences have been very trying. A few months ago he had a severe attack of paralysis, from which he recovered, though apparently with his nervous system severely shaken. He found it necessary to give up his practice, and it seems that in his distress of mind the peaceful days of his priestly life recuired to him with irresistible attractiveness. Daring his recent visit to Rome, Bishop Toebbe secured a special dispensation from Rome for the physician, and about two weeks ago the latter announced his intention of retiring from the world. What immediate effect the appouncement may have had on his wife and two daughters is known only to themselves, but the ladies consented to the act, and resigned themselves to their fate. The circumstance that Dr. Sorg's medical advisors looked favorably upon the project, hoping that the quiet and freedom from care of a monastery would have a recu perative effect upon their patient's mind, prob ably influenced the ladice, who are intelligent and sensible women.

Accordingly, the physician made all prepara tions for his civil death in order that his family might have no trouble in collecting the income on which they must subsist, and yesterday bis devoted wife took him to the retreat known as Monte Casino, a short distance from Covington, where he will remain until his health is restored. When he is again in sound health he will prepare to return to the priesthood .-His wife and daughters expect to visit him often and minister to his comfort as fer as they

BRILLIANT GERMAN AT EXCHANGE HOTEL, -The entertainments given at the Exchange Hotel during Fair week concluded last (Friday) with a very brilliant double German, which was largely attended by the guests of the hotel, strangers visiting the city, and the elite and fashion of our resident society. It was said to have been the most beautiful entertainment of of the kind ever given at the hotel, and the arrangements made by the executive committee were in all respects most agreeable and acceptable to the guests. The ball room was very much crowded and the company unusually brilliant. Among the distinguished visitors present were Gen. Jubal Early and his nicco, Miss Early, from Lynchburg; Miss Grigsby, daughter of the Hon. Hugh Blair Grigsby; Maj. and Mrs. Gus Drewry, from Westover, and many others. The dancing was confined exclusively to the German, which was led before supper by Mr. Jo. Lane Sterae, of Rich mond, and Miss Ashby, of Culpeper, and after supper by Mr. Sprigg Campbell, of Richmond, and Miss Picasants, of Illinois. The German, however much it be inveighed against by many whose opinions are entitled to respect, is cer tainly very pretty, when well danced, and was can readily understand how with so many good dancers as we have in Richmond, cur young people find it a little hard to give it up for a simpler and less inspiriting form of quadrille. The German last night, with its varied figures and favors, was conspicaously pretty, and was danced and enjoyed by over thirty couples, in fu'l evening dress .- Rich. Standard.

A young man who might have seemed green but for his sharp nose and the manner in which he handled a big wallet, entered a Griswo'd street bank, and handing out a ten dollar bill asked for trade dollars in exchange at the usual discount. As they were passed over to him the teller asked: "Going into a speculation?"
"Kinder that," was the reply." "I'm going to get married to morrow; hinted to the preacher that he might expect ten dollars." "Ah! I see." "Yes, and so do I!" remarked the young man, as he rolled ten of the dollars up together and slipped the other one into his vest. "It I can discount him a little with these. I'll do it."—Detroit Free Press.

The face of a lovely woman is perhaps the It is a sort of compressed extract of all that appeals to our sense or appreciation of the beautiful. It is the beacon light that guides many a heart toward the baven of purity and goodness, that would otherwise have stranded on the rocks of temptation and dissipation, but it will show a soot mark as quick as a man's, and a woman can wipe all over it except the exact spot where the mark happens to be.
